16-In. Snow Storm Hits Town, Ties Up Traffic

The worst storm to hit Andover in many years covered the town with a 16-inch blanket of snow late last week, then changed to sleet and rain, snarling up all forms of transportation while snow-fighting crews battled in day and night relays to keep streets and highways open for traffic.

The storm, which started Thursday and finally petered out Monday, was general throughout northeastern United States where it was responsible for at least 28 deaths, most of them due to heart failure brought on by shovelling snow.

Locally, about eight inches of snow had accumulated by Friday morning. This slowed traffic, especially on hills and at intersections. On several occasions as some vehicle got stalled on the Main street hill leading into the

One of the frequent scenes around town during the storm last week when motorists had to clear their cars of a heavy coating of snow and ice before getting under way. Here's a happy group of girls clearing the windshield of their car at the Tyer Rubber Co. parking space before starting their ride homeward. Town To Purchase New Police Cruiser

The bid of the Shawsheen Motor Mart of $2223.15 for a new police cruiser to replace the one recently damaged in an automobile — bus accident at East Sylvester and South Union streets, Lawrence, Dec. 22, was accepted by the selectmen at their meeting Monday night.

The accident, which happened just over the Andover-Lawrence line as Patrolman Calvin Deyermund was swinging around from South Union street to make a check at a filling station on Main street, damaged the police car so badly that it is believed to be beyond repair for police work.

The town expects it will also have to buy a new radio for the cruiser. This will cost $467. There also may be other small equipment needed to complete the job. Money for the new car will come from the 1952 reserve fund.

The board also voted to grant the Lawrence G & E Co., a location for one pole on Railroad street opposite the Tyer Rubber Co.

Weekend Snowfall Was 15½ Inches

A snowfall of 15½ inches plus 1 8/10 inches of rain and melting snow was recorded by the Essex Company in the recent storm. Snowbanks were piled so high that many compared them with the storms in the winter of 1947-48. The heaviest storms in that period were as follows: Dec. 23-24, 14 inches; Dec. 26-27, 19 inches; Jan. 2-3, 10 inches, a total of 43 inches in 12 days.

288 Fire Alarms During Past Year

The fire department answered 288 alarms in 1952, 56 box, 226 still, and 6 out-of-town calls. This is 63 more than the 60 box and 165 still, a total of 225 alarms answered in 1951. There were 634 ambulance calls last year while the year before the department had 706 ambulance calls.

The department in 1952 made 266 power burner inspections and 79 range burner inspections. There were 170 fire prevention inspections last year and 84 inspections of liquefied petroleum gas tanks.

Alternate Route Plans Still In Formative Stage

Plans for alternate routes for Routes 28 and 110 in the vicinity of Andover are not sufficiently advanced to discuss proposed legislation, the board of selectmen have been informed in a recent letter from William F. Callahan, commissioner of the state department of public works.

In the letter received this week by Roy E. Hardy, chairman of the board of selectmen, Mr. Callahan writes:

In reply to your letter of Dec. 31 concerning alternate routes for Route 28 and Route 110 in the vicinity of Andover, the plans of this department are not yet sufficiently advanced to permit any worthwhile discussion of proposed legislation.

Relative to the proposed location of Route 28 we have recently had a tentative line shown from Stoneham to the New Hampshire state line and when the aerial photographs and the aerial topographic maps are received, probably some time after Mar. 1, 1953, we will then begin our studies to determine the most feasible location for the new route.

The same condition prevails for Route 110. When this information is available from our aerial survey work, I will be pleased to have our engineers contact you for further discussion.

Many At Hearing For By-Pass Motel

A large number of remonstrants appeared at a public hearing before the board of appeals last week on the petition of Guy B. Howe to erect a hotel known as a "motel" at the northwest corner of Prospect road and the Andover by-pass.

The petition was taken under advisement pending the filing of briefs by Atty. Charles F. Hatch for the petitioner and Atty. Richard K. Gordon for the opponents on the question of what a "motel" is.

The board of appeals is authorized to grant a petition for a hotel

Ballardvale Man Cites Need For New Sewer

Conditions that exist in Ballardvale because of the seepage from cesspools and septic tanks into the streets have stirred a number of residents of the district to take action for relief.

The remedy they seek is a trunk sewer from the Vale center to the Abbot bridge where it would connect with the town system at Central street.

They have taken their problem to the board of public works and a study is being made to provide a plan that will not cost the $90,000 as first estimated but still will be satisfactory to all concerned.

Meanwhile a resident of the Vale describes for readers of The Townsman some of the conditions he has observed and the problem presented to him and other persons there.

Charles T. Bentley of Andover st. says in connection with the proposed sewer: "As a home owner and tax payer with a large frontage on Andover street I would like to be recorded in favor of same."

"I bought my home in September of 1950 and two months later I ran up against our local sewerage conditions, that is, the backing up of sewerage so that I was obliged to

Discusses Family Security Benefits

An interesting discussion on social security benefits plus life insurance was presented to members of the Andover Service club at its meeting last Thursday night at the Andover Inn.

Introduced by Louis S. Finger, vice president and treasurer of the Andover Savings bank, Allan S. Beele of Westwood, assistant secretary of the Savings Bank Life Insurance council, discussed many ways in which the combination served as family security in old age or upon death of the family breadwinner.

Several interesting phases of life insurance were taken up by the speaker and further explored by members in the question period that followed.

Mr. Beele stressed one point of interest to all who hold life insurance and that was that those who had not looked at their policies in the last few years examine them now to see that the proceeds are to be distributed as they intend to have them. In many old policies, Mr. Beele pointed out, the beneficiary named several years ago has died or time has made other changes that today call for revision.

The president, Will G. Brown Jr., opened the dinner meeting and the Rev. Frederick B. Noss of the South church offered the blessing. In the absence of the secretary, James B. Mosher, the semi-annual report of the secretary-treasurer was not presented.

Pres. Brown appointed George Westhaver, Vincent F. Stulgis and Fred Bradley a committee to secure the speaker for the next meeting.

What Our Readers Say—

Elusive School Children

Editor of The Townsman:

In your editorial last week you mention another survey to measure our school needs. If future surveys are going to be as wrong as past surveys, I'd say they are for the birds.

From the time of the Davis survey to the time that the town was urged to appropriate over a million dollars for new construction based on these findings, I recall no statement from our school officials indicating that the Davis figures were either wrong or obsolete. But long before the plaster was dry on those buildings we began to hear about their inadequacy. And we've been hearing about it ever since.

Our school committee has also been way off base. Where were those 150 or so children hiding who turned up to plague our committee last fall? Had they been lurking behind trees, or did they all steal into town the night before school opened, that our school committee couldn't find them? Whatever method was used, we want no more of it.

Having thus been misled twice can we continue to base our actions on that kind of information? It is true that our school population is changing but unless future studies can come up with more reliable answers, we might try pulling the answers out of a hat. If this method should miss by only a hundred it would be closer to the truth than the estimates for the current school year, would it not?

New Homes Increase

Prospects for the continued construction of new housing units in New England, as foreseen in financial circles for the outlook in 1953, serve to center attention on the wide extent of building operations experienced in Andover during the past several years.

In making a survey of the year just closed the records of Building Inspector Ralph W. Coleman show that 120 new dwellings were erected here or were in the process of construction during that period. The number for the preceeding year was 102.

Going back a little further the records disclose that the construction of new dwelling units went along in town at a fairly steady pace. For the six year period ending last December 31 the total reached the high figure of 606, not including the 56 apartments provided for veterans and their families in the veterans' housing project.

The prospects for building in the present year seem to indicate just about as much activity as in the past few years. Banker and Tradesman, in its review of the real estate market, says that the chances are that 1953 will see as great a demand for houses as 1952. "It may be slightly lower, but not much," it adds.

Right now in Andover there are 37 new houses under construction, a rather unusual number for the winter period when, only a few winters ago very little new construction was attempted on dwelling units.

There is no doubt Andover is a good place in which to live and the continued increase in the number of new homes over the past several years shows that this idea is shared by many others who have taken up their residence here to enjoy the advantages the town possesses.

NEW BOOKS

Now that the eyes of the world are turning toward England and the excitement of the coronation, more and more interest is being shown in the country, its people, its customs and problems. Among the books recently added to the library are several that will appeal to readers of English subjects: English Inns; Castles and Manor Houses; The New Forest And Hampshire; Shakespeare's Country; Home Counties; Rural London; English Cathedrals And Abbeys; English Villages; Pageant Of London and Yorkshire In Pictures.

These fascinating books are all part of the famous Odham's British Illustrated series. The books average about 130 pages and contain nearly 150 photographs of the country. There is a brief comment beside each picture that points out the interesting sites and gives a short sketch of the history of the place.

The lives of three famous painters who claim Britain as homeland will be interesting to readers who enjoy the arts; Gainsborough, by Mary Woodall, Constable, by Sydney J. Key, and Turner, by Clare. These are additions to the British Painters series, and resemble the Odham's series in format.

The fourth volume of the Trevelyan "Illustrated English Social History" has been published and has been added to the series already on the library shelves. Any volume in this history might well be opened at random and the reader would find something to catch and hold his attention.

Sir Frederick Ponsonby has written a memoir of three reigns — that of the latter years of the rule of Queen Victoria, the reign of King Edward VII, and up to the year 1935 of the reign of King George V. With brilliant wit and a fine sense of fitness Sir Frederick has recorded the social and ceremonial life of the times, and the manners and morals of the people. A short history of the life of King George VI, another of the Odham's Press books, has been added to the library and tells in about one hundred and fifty pages of photographs and comment the highlights of the life of the much loved monarch.

George Walker Hinman, former teacher at Phillips academy and known as "Georgie" to a generation of students, dies at his home on Salem st.

Venison steaks cut from deer shot by Selectman E. P. Hall provided the main course for the dinner at the annual meeting of the Square & Compass club, Rowland L. Luce elected president for the fifth term.

"British Planning And Nationalization" by Lewis is a recent appraisal of the nationalization program of the British Labor Party, and Frank Swinnerton's "Bookman's London" is a fine guide to the life, history and tradition of the London literary world, from the Elizabethan age to the present. It has been called "a book about books and the men who make them."

A delightful book on the crafts of the British artists, "British Craftsmanship", gives the history of glass, pottery, clocks, furniture and other popular and traditional arts. Collectors and antique lovers will find this a treasure.

For a fine social history of the people, as developed by the common man, the book by Christina Hole, "English Sports And Pastimes" is an interesting one. The illustrations are from paintings, prints and photographs. Nicely made book.

Any book mentioned here may be borrowed or reserved at the library.

Named Executor Of Father's Estate

The will of the late Dr. Gustave E. Kurth of Lawrence named William W. Kurth of Andover, sole next-of-kin to his father, as executor of the estate which has an estimated value of $95,000. Dr. Kurth died last Dec. 26. The will was recorded at the registry of probate in Salem last week.

The son was bequeathed the residue of the estate. A bequest is also made to his housekeeper, Elsie K. Page of Lawrence, which includes certain household goods. It also provides $100 for her for each calendar year during which she was employed by the deceased. The will stated that the legacy for the woman is "evidence of my appreciation of the faithful and competent service she has rendered to me as housekeeper and attendant for many years."

What's "in the works" at G. E.

THESE FOLKS

MEAN BUSINESS!

Their Money Helps Keep G-E Machines Humming

People have often asked "Who owns G. E.?" Actually 252,459 people and groups of people are shareowners of General Electric.

Many of the people you pass on the street have invested their savings in the company. Most of them are "everyday" folks — housewives, tradesmen, doctors, clergymen — people from all walks of life. Thousands of G-E owners come from Massachusetts — a large percentage from right in this area. Many are G-E employees themselves. And under the new Stock Bonus Plan for employees, 11,330 local G-E folks will acquire approximately $1,500,000 worth of General Electric stock.

When people invest their savings in General Electric, it means more money is available for new machinery, for new buildings, for research to keep G. E. ahead of competition. It means more business and more jobs for local people — more and better products for the home, industry and defense.

The number of G-E shareowners from all over the nation has increased by 35,000 since 1941. This steady growth in the number of shareowners who believe in free enterprise and in the future of General Electric Company is another reason why "G. E. means Good Employment."

but the present law does not cover "motels."

James S. Eastham, chairman, Roy E. Hardy, secretary, and Edward P. Hall, the three regular members of the board, were present at the hearing.

The petitioner proposes to build a 4-room, 1½ story dwelling for himself and from this central building branch out with five rooms on either side according to specifications of zoning laws and standards of the Quality Courts association.

Henry S. Hopper and Louis S. Finger spoke in favor of the petition and a letter in favor was read from Chester W. Holland. Several residents of the neighborhood spoke against it.

Atty. Gordon claimed that the zoning laws passed in 1936 declared that this section was a single residence area and that no multiple dwellings would be permitted under such law. He also stated that the law maintains that no overnight cabins can be erected in this area. He questioned whether a motel more closely resembles overnight cabins than a hotel.

The petitioner feels that there is a pressing need for good tourist facilities in the area and that he would cater largely to parents visiting various schools and colleges in the Greater Lawrence and Bradford area. He said that no food would be served and that this is a basic distinction between a hotel and a motel.

It is expected that briefs will be filed within a short time, and until then the board will reserve its decision.

Women's Finance Forum Opens

The first meeting of the Finance Forum for Women, sponsored by the November club, was attended Tuesday by a large group of women who braved the weather to hear Clyde S. Casady, executive vice-president of the Savings Bank Life Insurance council, speak on the subject of "Life Insurance and Social Security." Mr. Casady prefaced his more specific remarks on this subject with a general discussion of how to plan for present and future spending, and how to relate this spending to current and expected income and to the inevitable ups and downs of the nation's business economy.

The second meeting of the Forum will be held at 10 a.m. Tuesday, Jan. 20. The subject will be "Wills, Estates and Trusts." The speakers will be Knight Ames of North Andover, assistant vice-presidents and co-heads of the estate planning department of the Boston Safe Deposit and Trust company. There are still a few vacant seats for those who might like to attend the remaining three lectures in this series. Reservations may be made by calling Mrs. Cleveland Gilcrest, And. 1312.

TIES UP TRAFFIC

square, traffic was halted in a long line that reached back to Shawsheen Village.

Late Thursday night Supt. Edward R. Lawson of the board of public works got sanding trucks out and about 3 a.m. Friday, with an accumulation of about three inches of snow got the plows in operation.

As the storm progressed the entire snow-fighting equipment of the board of public works, including the big grader, and the entire personnel of the department was out clearing streets together with the five privately-owned plows that are usually engaged for storms together with several other units such as the small snow scoops that were used to clear intersections.

By Saturday the storm had changed to sleet and freezing rain and then to a drizzle that continued through Sunday morning. This was followed by more rain and snow flurries Monday morning.

Snow plowing operations continued through Saturday until late at night. On Sunday snow removal was started to clear streets in the busier sections of the town and at several main intersections.

Householders had their troubles with drifts and in attempting to open up driveways. Many motorists could not get snow plowing equipment until late Saturday or Sunday, and many others who had their cars parked on side streets Friday morning found them well snowed in by night time and had to walk home. Most of them were shovelled out by Saturday night.

While many power failures were reported in other areas as the freezing sleet and snow covered trees and wires with such extra weight that they broke, very little damage was reported here. Some few minor auto bumps were reported but the only serious damage was the collapse of a roof at the Shawsheen Laundry Inc., at 2 Haverhill st. This building was recently damaged by fire but the section that collapsed was over another part of the building. The damage will close the plant for several days.

Borderline temperatures prevailed Saturday, Sunday and Monday morning which kept the snow on streets and highways through the town from more than a slight freezing while plowing and snow removal work was being done.

Another three-quarters of an inch of snow fell Tuesday morning making road conditions very slippery. The board of public works had sanding trucks out Tuesday morning covering hills and main highways.

Supt. Lawson of the board of public works estimated yesterday that the big storm by the end of the week would cost the town about $4500 for plowing and snow removal operations. In the winter get my cesspool pumped out to the amount of 1500 gallons.

"The following year due to heavy rains and sewerage I was forced to do the job over again. Last spring or summer the Bradlee school next door to me was seeping up out of the ground and had to be pumped out. After 3000 gallons had been taken away it overflowed again and a new dry well had to be made. It took about 13 perch of stone to do the same. And the condition still exists, running down over the banking, onto the sidewalk."

Mr. Bentley recalled that last week a cesspool near the post office had been overflowing into the street. "To say 'it smelt' is putting it lightly. Last summer," he went on, "I sat in at an executive meeting at a friend's home on Marland street and it was necessary to use incense to combat the outside odor."

Mr. Bentley says that these are only a few of the conditions that exist.

He adds that "should the article be voted by the people of ALL Andover, Ballardvale, Indian Ridge, Shawsheen and the town proper, I sincerely believe it will mean a better place to live, to rear our children and keep them from diseases that may arise from such conditions."

"We know it is going to mean a slightly higher tax rate, but let's face it, Andover is experiencing growing pains whether or not the people realize it and we must wake up to the fact."

Board Of Trade To Meet Tuesday

Among those who have lent books for this unusual exhibit are Mrs. Irving Southworth of School st., B. Allen Rowland, P. A. 1928, of Methuen, Benjamin A. Schlesinger, P. A. 1892, and the Charles E. Lauriat Co. of Boston.

The public is invited to see this unusual collection which will remain on exhibition until Jan. 21.
